

To enable us to advise you which is the best hinge or latch set for your application, or to source replacement products it is important for us to know the OFFSET of the door. This is how the offset is determined:

With door closed, measure the distance from the jamb to the door face.

Safety Latching

Where there is a possibility of entrapment within a latched enclosure, safety standards require the use of a latch or handle fitted with an Inside Release Mechanism. Latches without a mention of this feature in this catalogue are intended for use only on small units with insufficient space for entrapment.
